2022 topic: Russia & Ukraine Crises

The tension between Russia and Europe is increasing day by day because of the ongoing war in Ukraine, as it is no longer a secret that the war is in fact between the Russian and Western parties, specifically USA, because of the direct political and military support to Ukraine, and the major parties in Europe are trying to stay away from this conflict as much as possible to avoid a major war.

Russia is currently using one of the pillars of its military principle, which is the policy of siege and suffocation of Ukrainian cities, but with the increase in victims and Ukrainian refugees, the West countries finds an excuse to continue providing the support to the Ukrainian army, which worsens the crisis and significantly increases the losses of each parties.

The Sultanate of Oman has always been known for its role in bringing the views within the countries and their neighbours, on many sensitive political issues.

OMAN characterized by good relations with neighbor countries and adopted neutral positions on several regional issues and keep the door of negotiation open with all parties as it happened between IRAN and USA conflict in 2014 and how the power of negotiation solves this conflict.

As stated by the Minister for Foreign Affairs, Oman government concern on the consequences of the escalation in Ukraine war, and appealing the international community to redouble diplomatic efforts in accordance with the principles of international law to overcome this crisis.

The global economy has hardly found a way to recover from the inflation crises and global supply chain issues, Russia's war on Ukraine has delayed the global economic recovery, which was reflected in huge increases in the prices of energy sources and affect the supply chain cycle.

The global economy will suffer greatly, and the poor countries will be the most effected in this situation because of lack of food supplies as they depend on these countries completely.

Position Paper

OMAN government very concerned about the next wave of hunger which may happened soon if the war will continue, because of the supply chain issues and rising the costs of food supplies which will affect most of the countries globally.

In addition, families were separated from one another and more than 10 million people have been forced to leave their homes, and there are millions of refugees have been forced to flee their country, making this refugee crisis the most accelerating since World War II.

The food supply crises and the refugee's issues are the most important complications which can affect not only specific countries but the world itself.

OMAN government support the dialogue and negotiation to overcome this war by the giving the chances of each party to have the right to Defend their views without any Intervention of the other countries.

Both countries should convince that political concessions are better than destruction and loss of civilian life's in the war, Ukrainians accept, for example, Russia's control over CRIMEA, and parts of the DONBASS region. In return, Russia accepts Ukraine's independence and extending their relations to Europe. This does not seem likely, but it is not unlikely that such an agreement will solve this issue.

finally, Ukraine and Russia must decide their own fate without the interfering of other countries and each party should sacrifice on some terms which can make a big different to solve the issue.
