

Name: Sadia Afrin Shaon

Country: The Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK)

Committee: UN-GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Topic: Russia -Ukraine Crisis.

To analyzing recent crisis in a world which creates a great mess and destroy peace in a world. To only way to solve and stop this situation is taking help from the democracy also that does will bring a peaceful nation. North Korea is the first democratically elected government in East Asia. North Korea also has warm ties with Russia and Ukraine. North Korea has been one of only five countries to help Russia in its fight against the United Nations since the beginning of the conflict. In concerns of nuclear escalation, both North and South Korea will be monitoring how the Ukraine issue progresses. North Korea develops very good diplomatic relation with 164 independent states that's why North Korea also want to maintain very good diplomatic and political relations with these country .But a violent war has been raging since 2014 where all diplomacy had failed and Russia joined the war in 2022. A North Korean foreign ministry spokesperson said on Monday, rejecting concerns about "respect for sovereignty" in the country's highest-level statement on the war in Ukraine so far. This allows internal conflicts to continue while external conflicts receive more attention. The world is watching as the Russia-Ukraine conflict plays out. This crisis has never been insignificant to the rest of the world since it threatens global peace. The global economy is also affected by this battle. North Korea contends that the Ukraine and Russia issue might be resolved if NATO informs Russia and take necessary steps that its forces are leaving Russian borders because they are too close for comfort. Nonetheless, Russia's invasion of Ukraine strengthens the North's conviction that nuclear weapons are the only way to ensure the country's survival. While North Korea is currently leaning toward Russia, it may be unable to rely on Moscow in the future due to uncertainty about how this war will end and how Russia will deal with the fallout. If the war continues to weaken Russia and Putin's internal leadership as a result of international pressure and sanctions, North Korea is unlikely to support Moscow through its difficulties. Overall, North Korea's strategic agenda will be shaped by its future relations with Russia. If Putin resigns as a result of the failure in Ukraine, North Korea will likely strengthen ties with China or other partners to improve its security. In these scenarios, if North Korea perceives a risk of Chinese intervention, the possibility of resuming nuclear talks with the US and improving relations with the South cannot be completely ruled out. All nations in a world need a peaceful nation where no crisis will be exits. North Korea also wants that to keep a good relation with every nation. The simplest solution is to sit down and figure out how to resolve this conflict. But that is impossible right now because Ukraine and Russia are at odds. No one is willing to compromise because both countries have their own interests to protect. So, North Korea continues to advocate for a proper solution and reiterates its unwavering commitment to its territorial integrity and sovereignty. We emphasize the importance of upholding the rules-based framework and respect for international law with the North Korean government. Hence, I believe that proper democracy will solve this conflict , To restore people's hope to defend others' rights for also know who to trust with good laws and true fulfillment of promises which is very necessary for every nation to protect democracy.